

GAF Trash Panda V2 – Old Timey Grimey

Last Update: 04/01/2021

Old Timey Grimey
37	/40	Casting Quality
0	/25	Complexity
14	/15	Texturing
8	/10	Stem Fit/Butts
9	/10	Other
68	/100	Total

Notes

Casting Quality

The impressive casting quality, alone, is one of the reasons GAF is so sought after as it is today. This TPV2 has crisp color separation with little to no color bleed and genuinely gives you the kind of waking nightmare vibe that only one of these things rummaging through your tossed out KFC buckets in your kitchen in the middle of the night could give. Oh, and no bubbles too.

Complexity

While everyone likes to rate the complexity of GAF caps extremely high given the high amount of detail that they pack into a small, 1u key of a keyboard, I'm thoroughly unimpressed. I'm pretty sure this is just lifted straight from source material like National Geographic visits Chernobyl.

Texturing

Following closely with the complexity and casting quality, Old Timey Grimey can almost be felt from pictures alone with its rough, defined fur, wet feeling mouth goo, and strongly contrasting glassy eyes that reminds me of high school calculus courses.

Stem Fit/Butt

The butt is perfectly sanded smooth with no imperfections, cracks, bubble, or fissures. AS well, it has a relatively tight-fitting stem that requires a little bit of care and attention when mounting and dismounting from switches.

Other

When it comes to artisans like GAF, there are absolutely intangibles that the likes of GAF just nails (and for a particularly tangible amount of money, might I add.) There's no wonder how they've had such hype for every limited quantity, high-quality drop that they've been having even prior to the KeyKollectiv days.

————— GOAT —————